

ABSTRACT

A transmitter head for a system for contactless energy transmission includes a support connected to at least one ferrite core. The ferrite core is embodied at least partially
5 in the E-form and a flat winding is arranged around one leg of the E.
